 - Inclusive education as a tool to prevent radicalisation and extremism

CITIZENSHIP EDUCATION AND DEMOCRATIC SCHOOL CULTURE

The issue:

- EURYDICE (2017): “citizenship education supports students in becoming active, informed and responsible citizens, who are willing and able to take responsibility for themselves and for their communities at the local, regional, national and international level”
- UNESCO (1998): “educating children, from early childhood, to become clear-thinking and enlightened citizens who participate in decisions concerning society”
- Citizenship education: part of national curricula for general education in all EU MS and many other European countries.
- Creating a democratic school culture is a way to contribute to citizenship education in educational settings.

CHALLENGES AND GOOD PRACTICES REPORTED BY RESPONDENTS

Translation of policies into practices.	Examples of toolboxes aiming to support citizenship education for school leaders and teachers (e.g. NL, Belgium/Flanders)
Lack of professional support to teachers across all issues related to citizenship education.	Examples of online guidance provided by educational authorities and survey results.
Extra-curricular activities depend on the engagement of the school leaders and teachers – specific support lacking.
Building consistency in teaching citizenship education.	Concrete focus on setting objectives for learning, developing differentiated and inclusive materials and adopt wide range of pedagogical approaches – survey results.
Participation of teachers and students in schools remains an issue that needs urgent attention: challenge of getting teachers and students involved in schools participatory processes.	Example of embedding participation in national plan for citizenship education (e.g. Portugal) and EU projects (e.g. Student Voice Erasmus+ project).
Assessing students' skills and competences in citizenship education.	Not systematically addressed at central level – examples of assessment guidelines.

Building consistency in teaching citizenship education.

Joint planning – where a controversial issue crosses subject boundary, teachers from the different subjects jointly plan the teaching of the issue.

Stage partners – where a teacher in the educational institution/school supports a newly qualified teacher or a more experienced colleague who has been transferred to a stage or grade they have not taught for some time.

Team teaching – where colleagues with different personal opinions on an issue share the teaching of the issue.

Peer observation – where experienced and less-experienced teachers observe each other teaching a lesson on the same issue.

Critical friends – where a teacher pairs with a small number of colleagues who ask critical questions to review their own practice, observe each other teaching and provide each other with constructive feedback.

TEACHING IN MULTICULTURAL LEARNING CONTEXTS

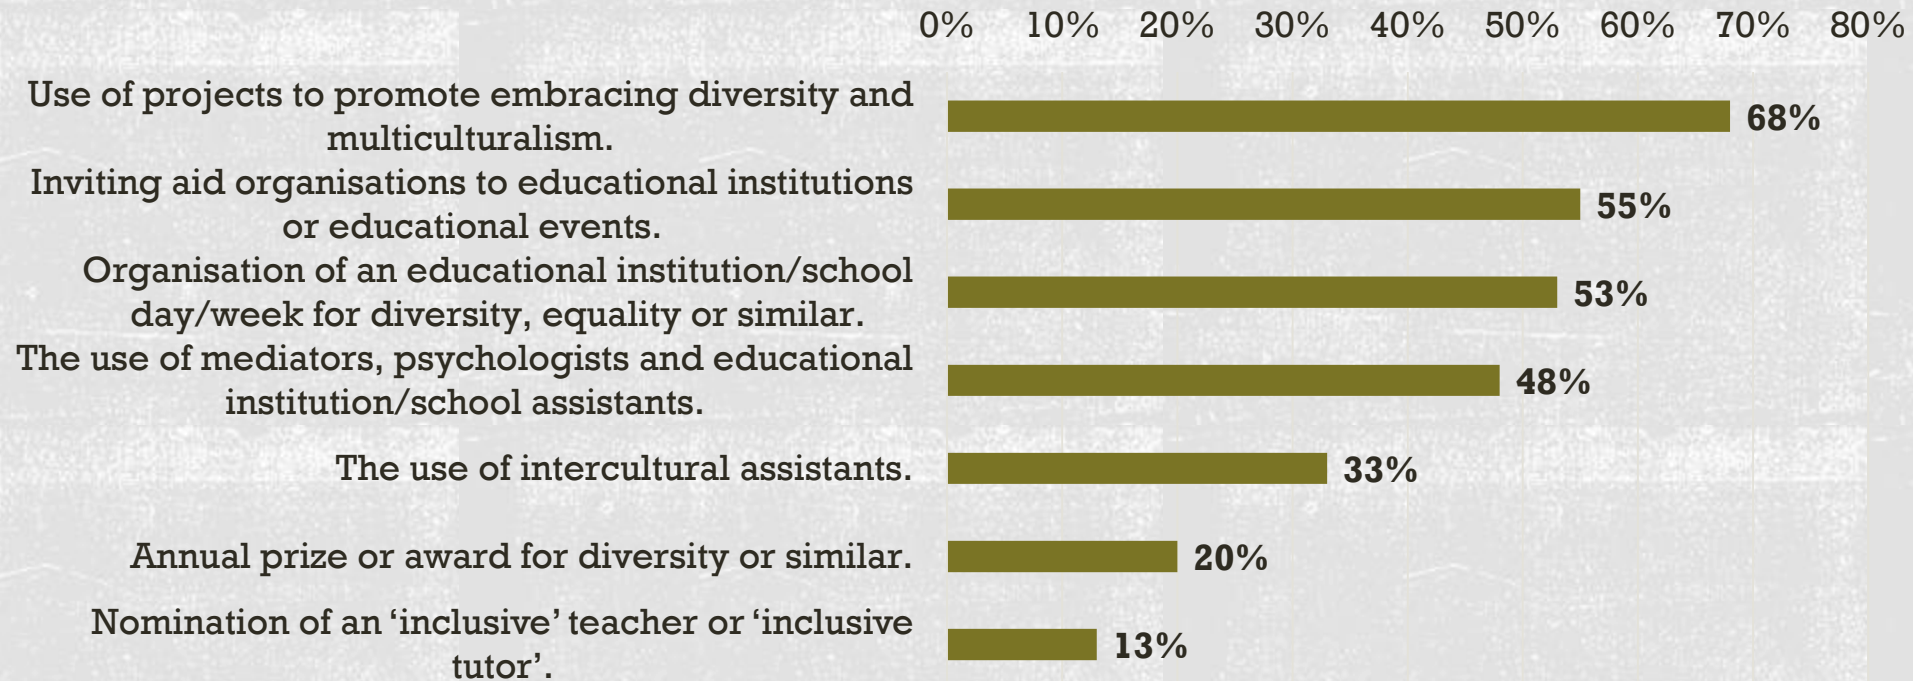

The issue:

- Diversity in society (intra-European mobility, international migration and globalisation) reflected in the educational landscape.
- Diversity in the classroom: “every learner matters and matters equally” (UNESCO, 2017).
- Inclusive education:
 - ✓ Understanding diversity and implicit biases to ensure that every learner matters.
 - ✓ Based on the understanding that education is a human right.
 - ✓ It aims to promote citizenship and universal values.

TEACHING IN MULTICULTURAL LEARNING CONTEXTS

Initiatives/actions set up to promote diversity and multiculturalism to foster social inclusion

TEACHING IN MULTICULTURAL LEARNING CONTEXTS

Language barriers to meaningful communication between teachers and students and among students.	Suitable support for teachers (e.g. opportunities for mediation between languages).
Integration vs inclusion as starting point to multicultural learning.    	Integration is about the incorporation into society or into a specific group, inclusive education is based on the belief that all children are different and that all children have the same rights and should have the same access to education and choices. Collaborative pedagogical methods to support individual learning needs are considered to be effective – survey results.
Involvement of parents/carers.	Training/counselling related to increasing ‘cooperation’ between schools and parents/carers from various (cultural) backgrounds is considered to be necessary (75% of respondents). Having a clear policy framework on e.g. communication and cooperation with parents (93% of respondents)
Preparedness of teachers (knowledge and skills) to manage differences and multiculturalism in the classroom and beyond	Teacher training empowering teachers to manage differences and multiculturalism in classrooms is considered as an effective approach to value diversity as well as clear policies and programmes addressing and preventing discrimination and exclusion – survey results.
Lack of support: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Lack of overall (policy) framework. • Lack of ‘how to’ implement in practice. • Lack of means. 	Examples of National Strategy, Decrees, national action plans for civic education; of guidelines and toolboxes.

The issue:

- Extremism and the underlying forces of radicalisation are among the most pervasive challenges of our time.
- Push (e.g. inequality, discrimination) and pull factors (e.g. groups, 'social networks') influencing processes of radicalisation and development of extremism.
- Education can play an important role to resist pull factors and to contribute to reduce/tackle push factors.

INCLUSIVE EDUCATION AS A TOOL TO PREVENT RADICALISATION AND EXTREMISM

CHALLENGES AND GOOD PRACTICES REPORTED BY RESPONDENTS

Required knowledge and skills of teachers and school leaders to foster social cohesion and build resilience, how to deal with difficult situations.

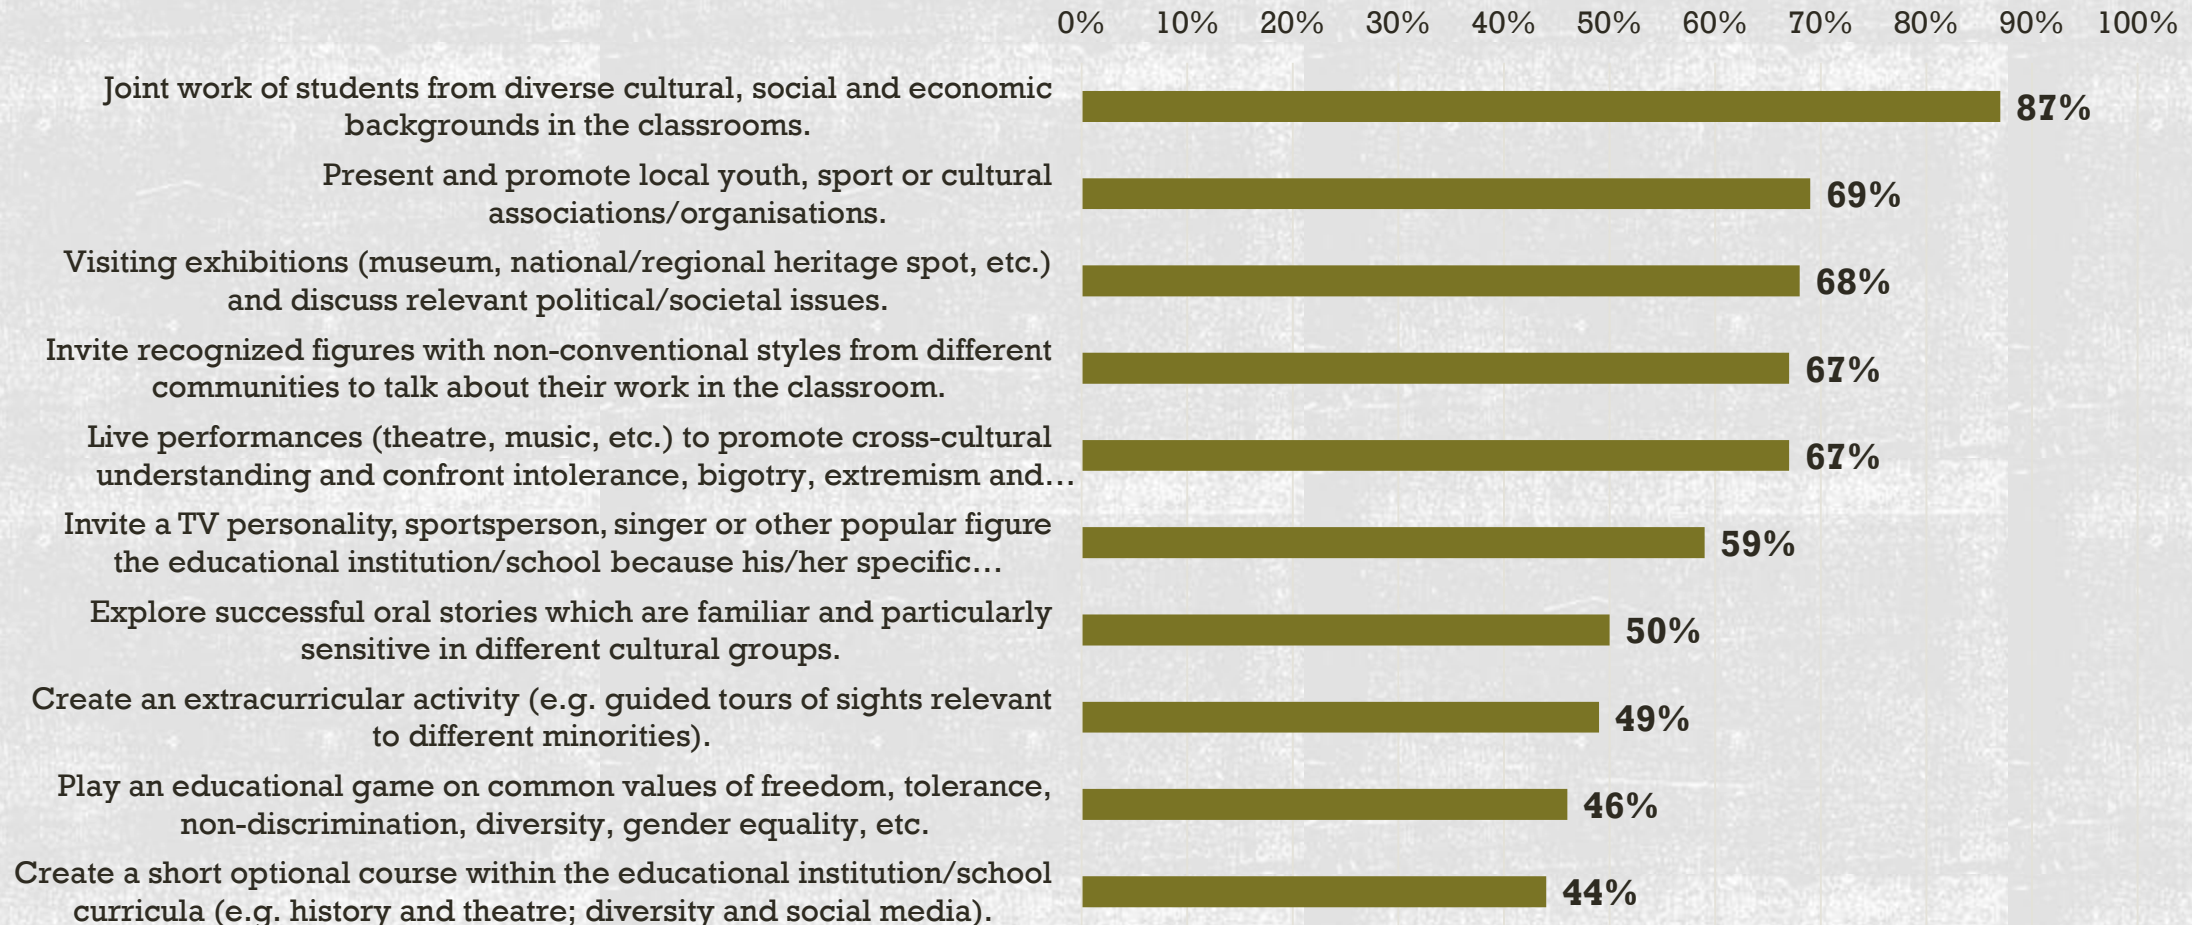

Framing radicalisation, violence, extremism in a way that helps students to explore own values and opinions.

- Initial training programmes and continuing professional development.
- Supporting policy frameworks, to create roadmaps with directions reflecting the values of inclusive education, e.g. National Strategy for the Prevention and Combating of Violence in schools (Cyprus).
- Schools should be 'Safe Places': examples of projects (e.g. EUROPE Erasmus+ project), Dutch Platform for Integral Safety.
- Building effective partnerships.
- Survey results: recommendations for activities to prevent radicalisation and extremism amongst students.

Recommendations for activities/practices to prevent radicalisation and extremism amongst students

CONCLUDING...

For tackling challenges related to citizenship education and to effectively foster inclusive education, the following points need to be carefully examined:

- Supportive policy frameworks should exist.
- Robust assessment systems in the area of citizenship and inclusive education
- Active participation of students and teachers.
- Participatory – collaborative learning approaches.
- School leaders play a key role in creating an enabling learning environment.
- Support to teachers in the delivery of citizenship education (“how to...”) (initial training and continuing professional development).
- A stronger involvement and networking of teachers and educators, school leaders, parents and learners within the school life (‘whole-school approach’) supporting more democratic learning environment.
- A mixture of curricular and extra-curricular activities is recommended to prevent radicalisation and extremism amongst students.

Looking for good practices/policies!
